3 series

Under Act of Apr. 1, 1836, requiring banks to make quarterly statements, and Apr. 16, 1850, act regulating banks.
From 1836 to 1838 the stmt. of liabilities and resources of the banks was issued separately under the title "Abstract, etc." From 1839-1891 it was a part of the regular report on banks; for this period, however, the summary covers but one date, viz.: Oct. or Nov. The first three issues are collated below under "Abstract."

In Federal documents as follows:

Pursuant to U. S. House resolution of Jly. 10, 1832, the Secretary of the Treasury was directed to submit to Congress at the next and at each successive session a return showing the capital, circulation, etc. of the various state banks. Returns were made annually from 1833 to 1863 inclusive, when the first national bank act went into operation.

Under the federal resolution the following annual reports of the state of Pennsylvania came to be printed in the federal documents. Returns made by the U. S. Secretary of the Treasury to Congress, which are not annual reports, are entered below in their chronological place under the "non-serial" group.

Receipts and Expenditures

"Penn. imposed onerous conditions upon the grant of a bank charter, besides requiring payment into the state treasury of large amts. of money hy way of bonus or consideration. The Phila. Bank passed to the credit of the state treasurer the great sum of $135,000 to be drawn out as the exigencies of the state might require. The Farmers' and Mechanics' Bank of Phila. gave the state in 1809, $75,000 of its capital stock. The Bank of No. Amer. paid for a renewal of its charter in 1814, a gratuity of $120,000. The Girard Bank, incorporated in 1832, was required to pay into the treasury of the Commonwealth, within one year from the date of the charter, $25,000, and within three years $25,000 more."

Bank of Pittsburgh

Incorporated under the "Mammoth" act of Mch. 21, 1814. The bank was first organized in 1808, but in Mch., 1810, was prohibited from conducting a banking business unless chartered by the Legislature. The business was continued however, under the title "Pittsburg Manufacturing Co." until a charter was secured when the old title was resumed. A branch bank was maintained at Beaver from 1834 to 1839.

BANKS: INDIVIDUAL BANKS—cont'd

Bank of United States (National)

The first Bank of the United States was established in Phila. See U. S. 61 Cong. 2 sess. Senate doc. 571; this document also contains an account of the private bank of Stephen Girard which filled the interval betw. the liquidation of the U. S. Bank in 1811 and the chartering of the Girard Bank in 1832.

Under act of the Penn. Legisl., Feb. 18, 1836, a state bank was chartered: "The present stockholders of the Bank of the United States, excepting the United States and the Treasurer of the United States, and such other persons as may become stockholders, agreeably to the by-laws made for that purpose to an amount not exceeding in the whole the present capital of the bank, their successors and assigns to be, and are hereby created a corporation and body politic, by the name and style of the President, Directors and Company of the Bank of the United States."

PENNSYLVANIA

Early in the year 1789 recommendations for a general system of inland navigation were made by both the Supreme Executive Council and the Legislature of Penn.; Apr. 13, 1791, a law was passed appropriating sums for improving the navigation of certain rivers and constructing certain roads with view to connecting "the eastern and western waters of the state"—an object finally accomplished by the Penn. Canal. The improvement of river navigation by removal of obstructions, erection of waterlocks, etc., and the numerous surveys and explorations during the period 1789-1824 were the experimental measures out of which developed the state system of internal improvement designated by act of Feb. 25, 1826, "The Pennsylvania Canal." (See below, Canals and Slack-Water Navigation: Individual—State.)

For the reason that the early river improvements were largely along the lines later included in the state system of internal improvement and are considered as inaugural steps in the development of that system, a large part of the material relating to improvement of navigation of rivers and other streams has been classified here, in preference to River Conservancy, or Public Works, headings used in preceding indexes for this kind of material.

The greatest incentive to improvements in inland navigation in Penn. was its natural adaptability. Among the influential factors in development may be noted (1) The Society for the Promotion of Internal Improvement of Road and River Navigation, formed in 1789; a memorial of this Society to the Legislature, Feb. 7, 1791, recommended a line of public works which was practically developed in the state system of public works; reprints of their memorials to the Penn. Legisl. are included in Amer. State Papers. Misc. v. 2, pp. 834, et seq. (2) Improvements in neighboring states. (3) The many private canal and slack-water navigation companies which had been incorporated and were in active operation before the state system was definitely located. The success of these companies was a strong argument for the establishment of a state work as a source of revenue. Moreover it was thought that the possible combination of these companies might prove a dangerous monopoly. (4) The Penn. Society for the Promotion of Internal Improvements, formed in 1824, did much to bring about state legislation on internal improvement; their publications being unofficial it has not been possible to introduce them into this Index; an excellent collection of their addresses, petitions and sundry publications is in the library of the Library Co. of Phila. The Society indirectly promoted the Canal Convention held at Harrisburg, Aug. 4-6, 1825, which adopted a resolution favoring internal improvements to connect the Susquehanna and the Allegheny and Ohio, and from the Allegheny to Lake Erie.

2 series

Under act of Apr. 11, 1825.

Note: Throughout this series there is much variation between the departmental and document editions, and, in some cases, between the Senate and House departmental editions. Unless stated to the contrary, departmental editions from 1828/9 to 1857/8 do not include accompanying documents nor the Journal. The accompanying documents are included in the document editions up to and including 1842/3. The Journal of the board of canal commissioners has been listed separately (Group B) from the annual report, though it immediately follows that report as printed in the Senate and House Journals; it occurs in the departmental edition of the annual report in 1827 and 1827/8 only.

On account of the varying pagination and contents of the different editions, a particular effort has been made in indexing the reports to indicate the edition from which taken and whether found in that edition alone; the report proper of the canal commissioners occurs in all editions, and, as a rule is paged uniformly.

[2.] [Final] 1825/6 (Feb. 3, 1826) dept. ed. [Senate.] Prtd. by Cameron & Krause, 1826. 18 pp.
A typographical error occurs in all editions of this rept., viz: "under act of Apr. 7, 1825." It should read Apr. 11, 1825. This error together with the fact that repts. made Dec. 11, 1826 and Feb. 6, 1827 are entitled "First rept. . . . ." and "second rept. . . . ." [i. e. first and second of the year, not of the series] serves to give it the appearance of a special rept.

1818 Mch. 5. Failure to realize substantial benefits from internal improvements may be due to want of regard to importance of objects to be first improved; had "the whole surplus funds, in the first instance been properly directed to one or two turnpike roads or canals, leading from the west to the east, through the center of the state, in all probability, by this time, those great objects would have been fully completed." CANAL FUND

serial

One of the duties of the canal comrs. under act of Apr. 11, 1825, was inquiry into the establishment and management of a canal fund. In their rept. for 1825/6 (Feb. 3, 1826) they recommended establishment of a comn. to be called "The comrs. of the fund for the improvement of the state." The comn. established consisted of the secretary of the commonwealth, auditor gen. and treasurer.

In 1895/6 the rept. is complete for each month, contrary to that in Rept. of secy. of internal affairs, consisting of a single paragraph. Monthly repts. on climatology are published in the ann. rept. of the state bd. of health until 1904; see note below, under Bulletins.

BULLETINS

(Monthly)

Monthly weather bulletins were issued Oct., 1887, until Feb., 1896. Besides the re-issues in the Journal of the Franklin Institute, Oct. 1, 1887-May 31, 1895, they were reprinted in (2) state publications, viz.: the Ann. Rept. of the Secretary of Internal Affairs, pt. 1 and the Ann. Rept. of the State Board of Health; at first only an abstract was printed in the latter rept.; beginning with Dec., 1894 they are printed in full and from Dec. 1, 1895, to Feb., 1896, are found in the Ann. Rept. of the Board of Health alone. It should be noted also that the greater part of the material, with the exception of crop repts., listed below, in Groups B and C, was reprinted in the Board of Health Reports, 1896-1904.

1887-1896. Penn. state weather service bulletins: monthly summary of meteorological repts. made by voluntary observers, to, and monthly reviews prepared by, the meteorological committee of the Franklin Institute, Phila. [Known as the Monthly Weather Review, May, 1888, et seq.]

COAL MINES AND MINING: BITUMINOUS DISTRICTS

The Act of Apr. 18, 1877 provided for the appointment of a board of examiners; they were authorized to divide the bituminous coal region into three inspection districts; this division was to be revised whenever the examiners deemed it necessary.

The redistricting of the bituminous coal field in 1883 was done pursuant to provisions of the amendment of Je. 13, 1883 of the Act of Apr. 18, 1877, generally referred to as the ventilation law.

"The name of the mine is omitted for obvious reasons."

"The number of miners in this, as well as in other districts, is always greater at each mine than is really necessary for the production of coal needed by the operator . . . . the result is that the men's earnings are very small. . . . . In consequence of this one of the managers resolved that he would employ only enough men to give him the amt. of coal he needed daily, and he did so and kept an acct. of the men's earnings for the whole yr., and it showed the difference in the earning capacity of miners. . . . ."

1875. Act suppl. to acts rel. to state treasurer and sinking fund comrs., etc. considered. (Legisl. Record 1876; 994-997.)

1875/6-1876/7. Stmt. of receipts and payments of sinking fund, under act of Feb. 12, 1876. (A.R. treasurer on finances 1875/6 (p. 38)—same 1876/7.)

1876. By provision of act of Feb. 12, 1876, sinking fund will have 2/3 of taxes on corporation stocks for present fiscal year instead of 1/3 of said tax recd. last year. (Rept. of comrs. of sinking fund 1875/6: 926.)
Paging from Legisl. docs.

——. Recommended that comrs. be authorized to borrow, upon faith of state, at a rate of interest not exceeding 5% per year, a sum sufficient for payment of the 6% loans reimbursable Feb. 1, 1877, in full, and so much of other indebtedness of state falling due during this year, as ordinary receipts of sinking fund are insufficient to redeem or retire. (Same 1875/6: 926.)

——. In order to comply with constitution requiring an annual redemption of at least $250,000 of public debt, comrs. were compelled to purchase part of this amt. at a premium, through financial agent of state in Phila., as authorized by sec. 3, act of Feb. 12, 1876. (Same 1875/6: 926.)
Paging from Legisl. docs.

——. Object of sinking fund; requirements; amt. of public debt Dec. 1, 1864 and Dec. 1, 1875; balance of estimated receipts of sinking fund at expiration of fiscal year; recommended that one-third of corporation tax, assigned by Legislature to sinking fund, be dedicated to uses of general fund, thereby liquidating whole indebtedness in fifteen years; no further redemption of state debt possible until Aug., 1877; recommended that surplus funds be invested in state or U. S. bonds. (Govs. mess. (Hartranft) Jan. 4, 1876: 5-7.)

——. Remarks (Spicer) on proposed suppl. to act suppl. to the several acts rel. to the state treasurer and comrs. of the sinking fund; history of the state debt. (Legisl. Record 1876: 407.)

In lieu of ann. rcpts. of the city supt. of schools to the state supt. published in the ann. repts. of that officer, the board of public education of the first school district of Penn. (Phila.) issues an independent ann. rcpt., a custom established by the board of controllers of public schools of the first district of Phila. in Feb., 1819. The title, board of controllers, was changed in 1870 to board of public education; the repts. of the latter are numbered continuously with those of the bd. of controllers. PENNSYLVANIA

Penn. has no permanent school fund, the schools being supported by state apprns. and local taxation. In 1786, 60,000 acres of land were set aside for the endowment of public schools; it is thought that this apprn. went to county academies. In 1831 a second common school fund was established consisting of an unknown area of state lands; the fund was estimated at $1,500,000; before 1870 it had entirely disappeared.
